Scholarships Are Available

Over 9,600 scholarships will be available in California for the 1972-73 academic year beginning next September.

The Monterey County Assemblyman was a co-author of legislation to boost the number of State Scholarships from 6,000 to over 9,000.

The State Scholarship program is open to students attending both public and private colleges and universities.

State Scholarships are grants of money awarded on the basis of academic achievement and promise to students having financial need. These grants may be used to offset the cost of tuition and student fees and vary in range from $160 to $2,000.

Students attending Monterey Peninsula College or Hartnell College may have their scholarships held in reverse until such time as they attend a four-year college.

The deadline for application is November 19, 1971.

To be eligible, a student must be a resident of California and a high school graduate by the summer of the year of the award or have been accepted for admission by an accredited college. The student must demonstrate a need for monetary assistance and the financial status of the parents of the student is the primary consideration in determining financial eligibility. Students must take their SAT test before November 6, 1971.

Wood encouraged students in his district to apply for the program. "In this age of material affluence, no academically deserving student should be prevented from receiving an education because of financial hardship." Wood said.

Applications for State Scholarships may be obtained from Assemblyman Wood's District Office at 32 East Alisal Street in Salinas. The telephone number is 424-1703.

Vercoe to RunFor Congress

Melvin J. Vercoe of Monterey, who writes the weekly "As I See It" column in the Seaside POST, has announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the 12th Congressional District. The seat is presently held by Representative Burt Talcott, a Republican, who is expected to seek his sixth term in next spring's election.

Vercoe is the second announced Democratic candidate for the seat. Julian Camacho, an electrical engineer from Soquel, has already said that he will seek the position.

As is obvious from his column, Vercoe is deeply concerned about the long-range future of the country and its people.

A registered Republican until just three years ago, Vercoe says he plans to run because he is worried about the United States' "twisted national priorities," military expenditures and the Indochina war.

If elected, the 55-year-old carpenter vows that he "will not vote one thin dime to continuing this senseless war that is destroying our nation and I will speak loudly and clearly for rearrangement of our twisted national priorities before we lose America, period."

Vercoe says he plans to seek the upgrading of the social structure and hopes to see an end to a system of spending in which millions of Americans live in abject poverty.

New Pizza Parlor Opens

The Red Vest Pizza Parlor opened this week at 2110 Fremont Boulevard in Monterey. It was the former Simple Simon, and is now being managed by Steve Paul.

Assisting Paul is Val Kwong, serving Pizzas and beer. Sandwiches will also be served along with whatever one desires from a well stocked Cocktail Lounge.

The Red Vest is open daily from 4 p.m. to midnight. On Friday and Saturday nights it remains open until 2 a.m.

SCHOOL DAYS, SCHOOL DAYS - Peninsula children have recently returned to classroom after long summer of fun. Some, like these, are now experiencing school for the first time. Note how deeply interested newcomers are in actions of teacher.

Youth Center Sponsoring Fall Classes

The Seaside Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a Fall calendar of classes and events which will be held at the Seaside Youth Center.

Every weekday morning from 9:30 until 11:30 classes for adults will be held. They will coincide with a pre-school program of crafts and recreation for children between the ages of 3 and 5.

On Monday, there will be a women's exercise program. Tuesday will be macrame. Wednesday again will be women's exercise. Thursday's class will be interior decoration and Friday's offering will be a water color class.

After school, the center will offer a variety of youth activities including dancing for children between 7 and 12 on Wednesday from 3 to 5 p.m. On Tuesday from 3 to 5 there will be a children's cooking class.

Evening classes offered include self defense on Monday, macrame on Tuesday, community band on Thursday and silk screen on Friday. All classes will be held from 7 until 9 p.m.

The Center will also be open every Saturday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. for drop in acitivites.

In addition, there will be a beginning guitar class and drill team practice on Saturday morning.

Registration for classes will be held today (Thursday) from 10 to 12 a.m. and tomorrow from 10 to 12 and from 7 until 9 p.m.

More information about the Fall program may be obtained by contacting the Seaside Recreation Department in the city hall at 440 Harcourt Avenue. The phone number is 394-8531, extension 28. The Seaside Community Youth Center, 1185 Wheeler, 394-1772, can also furnish information.

Free, Meals Are Offered

A letter has been sent to parents of children in Monterey Peninsula Unified School District by Superintendent Allan J. Petersdorf offering free and reduced price meals to students who qualify.

Participation is limited to families with a monthly gross income from all sources at or below certain specified levels. Qualification also depends upon the number of children attending schools and service institutions from a given family.

"Reduced Price Meals" are those that are less than the regular cost of a meal and neither the child nor any member of his family shall be required to supply an equivalent value in work for the school or the school's food program.

"Parents whose application for either free or reduced-price meals is approved may be assured that no indication in the method of handling these free meals will single out children receiving these benefits," said Petersdorf.

Teachers Name New Chairmen

At its organizational meeting on September 2, the Representative Council of the Monterey Bay Teachers Association elected chairmen of the standing committees, elected members of the 1971-72 Certificated Employees Council and heard a report from president-elect Sam Alley of Fremont Junior High School. He spoke about the impact for teachers of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

Elected to serve as chairmen of the standing commen of the standing committees were: George Moscana (Larkin)--Improvement of Instruction; Mary Anne Kane (Ord Terrace)--Salary and Finance; Helen Speice (Monte Vista) --Professional Relations; Marcella Vreeland (King)--Professional Policies; Wayne Shirley (Del Ray Woods)--Special Services; Jesse Geyer (Nocha Buena)-Retirement; Marlene Stadille (Ord Terrace)--Research.

Regular and alternative members of the Certificated Employees Council elected to serve from November1,1971 through October 31, 1972, are Alley, Brian Weed (Monterey High), DeLucchi, Miss Kane, Herb Conley(Fremont) Moscona, Louise Fitcher (La Mesa), Joe Norton (Monterey High), Mae Johnson (King)and Duane Matterson (Hayes).

MBTA President Harold Ragan (Monterey High) closed the meeting with a plan that the 55 Faculty Representatives present return to the schools of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District to inform the teachers they represent of the necessity for continued membership in and renewed dedication to the united teaching profession.

Tourist Trade RemainsSame

The tourist industry on the Monterey Peninsula for the first six months of 1971 is on a par with the first six months of 1970.

The transient room-tax collections by the four cities and the unincorporated area on the Peninsula show 2.7 percent increase for the first half of 1971 as reported by Sherrell Watson, executive vice president of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Visitors and Convention Bureau.

The city of Seaside collected $8,697 in the first of 1971 for an increase of 8.5 percent above the same period a year ago. Monterey collected $158,868 for a 2.5 percent increase, with Pacific Grove collecting $38,054 for a decrease of 3.7 percent. Carmel received $86,563 for a 5.5 percent increase.

The County collected $96,111 from the unincorporated county area on the Peninsula for an increase of 3 percent.

A total of $388,294 was collected in the first half of 1971. This is 2.7 percent above the $377,737 collected in that period of 1970.

Patterson In Hospital

Patterson told us that the exploratory operation, performed last week, found no trace of cancer and his doctor told him that he would be all right in a few weeks.

Pat asked us to thank all of his friends who called and wished him well. He vowed that he will be right back in the middle of the action come election time.

God-speed in your recovery, Pat.

Birth Films To Be Shown

Two films, "Childbirth for the JJoy of It," and the Miller film "Story of a Birth" will be shown free of charge at the Monterey Public Library tomorrow (Friday) at 8 p.m.

Both films show couples preparing themselves, intellectually, emotionally and physically for the birth of their children. The actual deliveries are shown.

The film showing is presented by the Childbirth Education League. Following the films, there will be a discussion session guded by CEL teachers.

The Childbirth Education League sponsors prenatal classes stressing "prepared childbirth." Their belief is that the pain and discomfort attributed to childbirth are generally the result of fear and tension which in turn are the result of ignorance and misinformation. The CEL classes offer information, exercises and encouragement which prepare the couple for a dignified and unique experience.

A fee is charged for the eight week course and advanced registration is necessary during the fourth or fifth month of pregnancy.

Questions about the films or prenatal classes may be directed to Mrs. Tobey Schwartz at 659-4541 or Mrs. Jennifer Ross at 372-5535.

Crocker Bank Faces Civil Rights Suit

A $163 million civil rights suit has been filed in US District Court by four Northern California furniture dealers who accuse Crocker-Citizens National Bank of racial discrimination in the handling of finance contracts.

One of the four dealers is Leonard Padilla, an American of Mexican descent and owner of Carson Home Furnishing in Sacramento. Padilla first made his charges against Crocker public during a Sacramento Human Relations Commission meeting last January, when he accussed the bank of refusing to handle finance contracts for his predominantly minority clientele.

Spokesmen for the bank have denied all charges.

T. E. McCarthy, an instalment credit officer with the Sacramento office and one of the defendants in the suit, said today he had "no comment" on the action.

The three other furniture store owners who filed the action are all Negroes and include Ruth Cornellis, owners of Ebony Furniture and Interiors in San Francisco, Edward Battle of Seaside and William Robinson of San Francisco.

Although each dealer asks for separate damage awards, their charges are essentially the same - that Crocker refused to buy installment contracts from the store's customers "solely because of the race of)the furniture store owner), and a susbstantial number of his employes, and for no other reason."

All four charge the bank's actions have sharply curtailed their businesses and have resulted in considerable loss of profits. They charge the actions are unconstitutional, violate both state and federal civil rights laws and act in restraint of trade - a violation of federal antitrust laws.

Art Bayer To Be Honored

More information about the dinner can be obtained from the Art Bayer Dinner Committee at the Chamber of Commerce, 505 Broadway.

League of Women Voters Interview Burt Talcott

"What can we do to help make you work more effective in Washington?" Mrs. Alice Ellis, Legislative State and National Chairman for the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula, asked Congressman Burt L. Talcott, at a recent luncheon in his honor at the Del Monte Motor Inn.

"The League can help me by giving me the results of your studies," he said. "There are 550,000 people in my district and to do a good job in Washington, I need a consensus from them. Giving me advice on local matters where you have experience is most helpful."

When asked by Mrs. Ellis about the recent U.S. trade restrictions such as the high import tax, he replied.

"I favor the general principle of free trade and low tariff, but there are exceptions."

"What is your feeling about welfare legislation?" Mrs. G. Gervaise Davis, a former League president, wanted to know.

"I voted for HR 1 and I did so two years in a rown," answered Mr. Talcott, "It passed the house and has bogged down in the Senate."

"How can the League help?"

"Your problem is with the Senate," he told her, "Get in touch with your senators. They should get down to basics and vote legislation, either up or down. Their rules are different from the House, their objectives are different, their tenure is longer and problems other than legislation take up a lot of their time. For example, twelve of them are running for President."

Mrs. Allen Mitchell, vice-president of the LWV of the Monterey Peninsula, wanted to know Mr. Talcott's views on congressional reform, another League study.

"I'm pleased you are studying the Congress," he replied, "verybody has an idea of what should be done with Congress, but very few know the facts. I would like to change the seniority system, but do it within the system. I am currently serving on a Seniority task force and have made four suggested changes."

When asked what should be done to achieve reform, he said, "We must enact the reorganizational plan proposed by the President."

Of particular interest to the Monterey Peninsula area was Mrs. W.E. Bleick's question on waste disposal.

"Recyling is a very expensive system," he said, "And communities have been slow to take advantage of federal funds that are available once the communities have made the required engineering studies and put up their share of the money. Federal funding has exceeded almost twice what communities have been able to spend."

County Issues Are Subject Of UC Course

The University of California Extension, Santa Cruz, will hold a Tuesday night course focusing on key issues facing Monterey County. The class will be held from 7 until 10 p.m. each Tuesday from September 28 through November 30 at Monterey Peninsula College.

The three unit class, titled The Urban Environment and Changing Institutions, will be instructed by Roger C. Anderman, M.G.A. He is program coordinator for the County of Monterey, with broad experience in community affairs. He has been honored by the National League of Cities and is a member of the International City Management Association.

The course will focus on Monterey County and certain key issues and problems related to social and physical change. Topics include employment and economic development, planning and land use, housing and urban renewal, protection of the environment, drug abuse and the problems of youth, criminal justice and the needs and demands of minorities.

Guest speakers will describe the activities and strategies of agencies and groups working in various problem areas. Students will look critically at alternative approaches and solutions, at government and community attitudes and at community power structures as they work to produce or inhibit change.

Completes Course

Army second Lieutenant Raymond T. Burden Jr., 23, whose parents and wife, Linda, live at 26 Yerba Buena Ct., Seaside, California, recently completed a 16-week helicopter pilot course at the United States Army Primary Helicopter School, Ft. Wolters.

During the course, he was trained to fly army helicopters and learned to use them in tactical maneuvers.

Did Increased Import Sales Cause New Tariff?

The increase in sales of imported cars is believed to be one of the most important reasons for President Nixon's imposition of a 10 percent tariff on all imports not exempt by law or covered by quota restrictions.

The Trade Expansion Act of 1962 had restricted auto tariffs to 10 percent. However, because a 3.5 percent duty was already being collected, the President's action is resulting in only a 6.5 percent increase.

Attention has been called to the fact that removal of the 7 percent excise tax on all cars, which the President ordered, will leave foreign car companies paying .5 percent less in taxes rather than more.

However, imports are expected to suffer as American car prices are cut by a full 7 percent by elimination of the excise tax.

Auto manufacturers in the United States had predicted last year that the 1970 import market of 15 percent would be cut to 10 percent during 1971. Despite this optimism in Detroit, import sales so far this year seemed headed for 17 to 20 percent.

Foreign manufacturers had substantially increased their advertising budgets to attract United States buyers. The 12 leading companies spent $37 million for television last year, more than half again as much as the year before.

University of Michigan economists, discussing foreign vs. American cars, said that "the enormous competitive battle which is shaping up in the automobile industry will decide how many cars are produced in the United States ten years from now. If the American firms lose there will be far fewer jobs here building cars...

"One wonders how long it will take the unions and the federal government to realize what is at stake and how long before they begin to support instead of fight the manufacturers."

President Nixon's action was interpreted as an indication of the federal government's realization of "what is at stake."

Nevertheless, economists have expressed the belief that effects on the import and domestic car markets will not be clear for some months to come.

It's Never Too Early For Child's Eye Exam

It has been estimated that one in twenty preschool age children in the United States has some form of sight defect. If left untreated, these defects can not only impede a child's progress in school, but can adversely affect other aspects of his life, as well.

The Northern California Society for the Prevention of Blindness says that a professional eye examination administered when a child is three or four years old can mean the difference between good and poor vision for the rest of his life. Because it is only by means of such an examination that many children's vision defects can be detected, particularly in the early stages when the most successful correction is possible.

Many young children have vision problems which, according to the Society, their parents do not discover until far-advanced. The reason is that the child's eyes may look perfectly normal and healthy, and since he has no way of knowing how well he should be able to see, he does not complain.

One of the more common vision problems in children is a condition called amblyopia--"lazy eye"--which is improper vision caused by the disuse of one eye. This disuse occurs when the child's vision is distorted because of an eye muscle imbalance or other defect. To avoid the confusion and unpleasantness of, let's say, double vision, the child concentrates on seeing with one eye. The other becomes weaker and weaker from lack of use--becomes amblyopic.

Early detection of amblyopia is critical for proper correction. Once diagnosed, treatment includes first correcting the pre-existing condition--the muscle imbalance or whatever it is--and then patching the good eye. The child is thus forced to use his amblyopic eye, which is thereby strengthened and to which visual acuity is gradually restored.

Because many parents are not aware of the extreme importance of detecting amblyopia and other sight defects in children while still very young, the Society sponsors periodic preschool vision screenings in communities around the state, conducted by specially trained volunteers. The screening is not an examination or a professional test, but a simple technique to determine the possible need for professional attention. Any child who as a result of screening is suspected of having some form of vision problem is referred to his eye doctor.

The Society strongly recommends that all children undergo professional eye examination before the age of six, preferably by age three or four, and periodically throughout the school years. As a means of educating parents to the importance of such eye care for their children, the Society publishes and distributes a variety of literature dealing with children's eye defects as well as other aspects of eye health and safety. The organization's films on these subjects are widely used by PTA and other groups around the state.

The Northern California Society is an affiliate of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Founded in 1908, the National Society is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in the prevention of blindness through a comprehensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

PG&E Applies For Permit

Pacific Gas and Electric Company submitted application for a U.S. Atomic Energy Commission permit to construct two nuclear fueled generating units in Mendocino County, each with a capacity of 1,168,000-kilowatts.

PG&E also will make application to the California Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity. Both agencies hold public hearings in the local area prior to acting on applications.

John F. Bonner, PG&E executive vice president, estimated the cost for the two-unit plant at $742 million in 1971 dollars. Related plant facilities would bring the total project to $830 million at current costs, he estimated.

"We must commit this investment now because Northern and Central California will need such a large additional power resource by the time the project is completed," Bonner said.

"We must provide not only for normal growth of energy demands but also for the substantially increased energy required for operating expanded sewage disposal systems, advanced water treatment plants, recycling centers and other operations to clean up the environment. To do these jobs adequate, reliable and clean energy resources are needed.

"Nuclear power is the most environmentally desirable source of electric energy. Nuclear plants emit no products of combustion into the atmosphere. There are no harmful releases of radiation. The plants are designed and operated to assure that there are no significant effects on aquatic life from the slightly warmed water discharges from cooling systems."

PG&E is committed to optimum environmental care in siting, constructing and operating nuclear plants, Bonner emphaized.

At the Mendocino site, north of the city of Point Arena, scientists and consultants have conducted studies involving ecology, oceanography, marine biology, hydrology, geology, soil chemistry, seismology, meteorology and archeology in preparation for PG&E's applications to the AEC and CPUC. Several years ago the company also planted more than 5,000 young evergreen trees as part of its landscaping program to screen the site from Highway 1.

Before the AEC acts on the application, design and engineering analyses will be made by two groups of experts. These groups are the AEC regulatory staff and the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards, an independent body of scientists.

Bonner said the first Mendocino unit is planned for operation in 1978, the second unit a year later.

PG&E first announced its plans for the Mendocino site in 1966 and purchased it after a 120-day option period to permit public comment and preliminary review by the state and Mendocino County. The decision to seek permission to build on the site was announced last February.

had the above quotations entitled "FOOD FOR THOUGHT." I went back to my house and found in my daily prayer book the words - "The cheapest, stupidest and easiest thing to do is FINDING FAULT." This is the quote I was looking for. I realized how easy we all find it to find fault in others. This is why I wanted to tell you about these three brothers who are helping this friend of mine.

"Mother Jenny," as we all call her, is a spiritual minister, who is 92 years of age. Spry in mind and spirit and sharp as a tack in conversation, she lives alone in this little house in Santa Cruz which she also uses as her temple! A couple of years ago we went to visit "Mother Jenny" and ran into these boys at her home. It was a Sunday evening and they were singing songs, while Mother Jenny played her organ. They were having a great old time singing and laughing. We, of course, joined in and all had a great time. We learned from "Mother Jenny" after the boys had gone, that Tom, Dick and Harry (that isn't their names, but I know that they prefer to remain anonymous) had been going to her house regularly, taking care of her yard and garden, helping her to keep her house clean and bringing food, especially fresh vegetables and strawberries, from their own gardens. The boys now bring their mother with them and this selfless family have devoted themselves to making the life of "Mother Jenny" that much easier and happier. I could go on and on about all of the other wonderful deeds of these young men, but I think I made my point about our "criticism" about the younger generation. Too often we engage in generalities.

I have another young friend who was all excited about the shooting of a member of a motorcycle club in Jenner last weekend by an irate tavern owner. She claims that he was shot simply because he wanted to be served in this man's restaurant and the owner refused. The facts of the case are not all complete as reported in the newspapers, I am sure. As always, there are two sides to the story. My young friend claims that the cycle rider was shot by the tavern owner in cold blood, but the tavern owner, of course, has a different story. Here is a case in point where obviously the whole community and most any other community is prejudiced against motorcycle clubs, mostly because of their looks and strange behavior. I say prejudiced because that is what we are. We don't "approve" of their long hair and beards and dirty dress. We assume that they have an arrogant manner, yet I have met many of them as individuals and they are most mild mannered-until they are attacked by a hostile society. Sometimes they provoke these attacks, but in most cases I assume that they are only trying to do their thing.

This same young friend of mine can't stand what she calls "niggers," yet she is able to defend the rights of these motor hounds. How mixed up can we be? We have to stop making generalizations about any person or group and take each one individually without hate or prejudice. Let us look for the good in each individual rather than allow the prejudice which surrounds us to dictate our reaction to any group or individual.

Remember, "The cheapest, stupidest and easiest thing to do is FINDING FAULT and the greatest thing in all of the World, bar none is LOVE."

Mrs. Konig Honored by State Group

Mrs. Ann Konig, 7th and 9th grade arts and crafts teacher of Fitch Junior High, Fort Ord, was presented with a special Redwood Region Conservation Council Achievement Award in Monterey recently.

Deputy State Forester Emery Sloat, representing the California Division of Forestry, said that Mrs. Konig was being given a special redwood burl plaque citing her extroardinary record of coaching four consecutive winners of the Redwood Region annual fire prevention poster contest.

"Each year," Sloat said, "at least 10,000 Junior High School Posters are judged from throughout the Redwood Region that extends from Monterey north to Oregon."

Sloat added that although placing four firsts in the Junior High category for the years 1968 to 1971 was in itself a remarkable achievement, two of these 1st place posters received the Grand Award in the overall competition that included high school entries.

Loren Good, Executive Vice President of the RRCC said that the posters reflect the individual's own art form and theme idea, developed and inspired by Mrs. Konig's coaching. Good added that many of her students entering the RRCC contest have also placed 2nd and 3rd and many received Honorable Mention.

Good said that the Fitch Junior High poster art was so outstanding that Patrick Ondisko, Grand Award winning poster for 1968, and Judelyn Ann Halcomb, Grand Award winning poster for 1969, both later went on to win the Sweepstakes Grand Award Prize in the Western International "Keep Green" poster contests. This further outstanding accomplishment requires winning Best Poster from over tens of thousands of entries submitted from all over Western Canada and fifteen of the western United States.

The 1970 1st place RRCC Junior High award was won by Mrs. Konig's pupil Mike Thrift.

And the latest regional Grand Award winner for 1971 was Dan Ziegler, who has had his winning entry submitted to the Western International Contest which will be judged this next December.

Ellery S., Southern California Coastal Area Delegate, will address a General Service Meeting Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Meetings and workshops devoted to the many facets of A.A. activities will be in almost constant session. The Council Central Committee will meet Saturday at 11:30 a.m., with the Delegates Business Meeting at 2:30 p.m. The Young People in A.A. will meet at 4 p.m.

During the two days, both Al-Anon (non-alcoholic relatives and friends) and Alateen ('teen-age members) will also hold meetings devoted to the activities of these AA-related groups.

Fellowships To Med School Are Available

Legislation creating a medical fellowship program using state money was approved recently by the State Senate.

State Senator Donald L. Grunsky, author of the bill, said the measure was voted out of the full Senate on a vote of 26 to 1.

Grunsky's bill establishes a competitive fellowship program in medicine under the administration of the State Scholarship and Loan Commission.

Under the program, qualified students may receive aid in the form of scholarships to be used at accredited California medical schools.

Field Trip Is Planned

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will conduct a beginners' instructional field trip at the Pt. Pinos area this Saturday, September 18. Leader of the group will be William Reese.

The group will meet at 9 a.m. at the Pt. Pinos parking area across from Crespi Pond to look for shore birds, including migratory species that are seen here at this time of year, but are not local residents.

The beginners' trips are intended for people with little knowledge of bird identification who are interested in learning to identify birds in the field. Non-members, welcome to all Audubon activities, are particularly invited on these trips. Participants should bring binoculars if possible.

How to get ready for frost and save a little jack.

Shut damper when your fireplace is not in use. If you leave it open, cold air rushes in and furnace heat escapes. Also, shutting drapes over windows at night can stop up to 16% of the heat lost through windows.

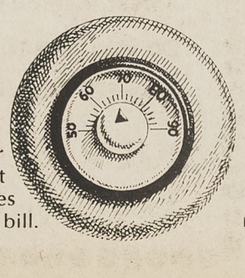

Have your furnace man check your heating system now. Also clean or replace filters if necessary. That way you'll be sure your furnace is working efficiently and is ready for winter before the first cold snap.

Weatherstrip around doors and windows. This keeps the warm air in and the cold air out where it belongs. Insulate. Good insulation in walls and ceilings can cut heating up to 45%. Which means it can pay for itself.

Don't touch that dial. Agree on a comfortable setting for your thermostat and leave it there. Frequent changes increase your heating bill.

If you follow these suggestions, you'll save heating dollars this winter. Your winter PG&E bill is usually higher than your summer one because you need more heat and light, eat more hot meals and use your appliances more. But when you think of how much PG&E energy does for you, it's still a bargain. In fact, even though inflation has forced rates up modestly after years of rate reductions, PG&E service remains your best household bargain. PG and E

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE COUNTY OF MONTEREY

In the Matter of
ROBERT MARCIAL GRAHAM,
For Change of Name.

Conductors' Bias Is Showing, Says Professional Bassist Lucille Dixon

Black musicians are being discriminated against in the rarified world of symphony orchestras, a qualified Black musician has charged.

She is Lucille Dixon, president of the Concerned Musicians Association of New York, and a professional bassist.

She charges--and offers documentation--that no less a public figure than Leonard Bernstein, popular symphony conductor, has been guilty of discrimination against qualified Black instrumentalists.

Her comments came after two Black musicians filed a suit with the New York City Human Rights Commission, charging the New York Philharmonic with discriminatory practices in the hiring of musicians.

Bernstein insisted that the Philharmonic was guided in its hiring by considerations of artistic judgment only.

PATTERN

In its decision, the Human Rights Commission agreed with the Black Musicians that "the Philharmonic has engaged in a pattern and practice of discrimination with respect to the hiring of substitute and extra musicians."

Such hiring, the Commission found, was not based largely on competitive auditions, but primarily on cronyism--that is, the extras were recommended by regular members of the orchestra who in many cases were actually their teachers.

The Commission dismissed the charges against the Philharmonic with regard to the hiring of permanent members because this was based on auditions. It said: "Discrimination in matters involving artistic judgment is, in the very nature of the case, most difficult to prove...We do not hold that the complainants are not well-qualified musicians. The evidence of their competence presented at the hearing establishes that they are indeed well-qualified. The issue, however, was not their qualification standing alone, but their quality of musicianship as heard by the Philharmonic's auditioners compared with their competitors at the time of their auditions."

The Commission decided the complainants had not proven that the Philharmonic had abused artistic discretion.

JOB BIAS

But Mrs. Dixon offered examples of what she said was racial discrimination masked as artistic discretion, starting with her own career.

"When I began my career in 1941, it was almost unthinkable for a Black musician even to ask for an audition with a symphony orchestra. I did get a job as a bassist with the National Youth Administration (NYA) orchestra, which was an outgrowth of the WPA (Works Progress Administration). But after it was disbanded, I couldn't even get an audition with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, and that's no kidding.

"It was then that I began playing primarily with jazz groups, as so many Black musicians have done when they had no alternative."

Years later, Mrs. Dixon recounted, she was promised a job by conductor Leopold Stokowski but soon learned that the musicians for his orchestra had been chosen and she was not among them.

Later, in 1965, Stokowski saw her playing a club date with a dance group at a reception in his honor. He invited her to play in his orchestra and it was announced by his manager that same night that she had been appointed to the American Symphony for the following season.

"Yet when I called his office the next day I was told that I would have to audition. I declined because I felt it was unfair to hire me and then ask me to audition. It's not done that way, at least not with white musicians."

In other examples of discrimination, Mrs. Dixon said the playing oboist Harry Smyles had approval by both Serge and Koussevitzky and Dimitri Mitropoulos, two giants in the world of serious music, but Smyles got nowhere with either Koussevitzky's letter of recommendation or Mitropoulos' promise of a job.

CITES CASES

Other proven musicians who have been discriminated against, Mrs. Dixon said, are bassist Arthur Davis and tympanist Elayne Jones, employed by the integrated Symphony of the New World and the American Symphony respectively.

Every one of the original members of the American Symphony, men and women, has gone on to better jobs except Miss Jones, who is still there, says Mrs. Dixon.

Bernstein, who said, concerning Miss Jones at the Commission hearings: "I'm an admirer of her playing, and I'm fond of her...her playing has always pleased me enormously," has never hired her as a regular player for the Philharmonic, Mrs. Dixon said.

On the hiring of substitute musicians, the Commission backed the Black musicians, saying:

"The most striking statistic to emerge from the evidence presented was that during the 1960's, the Philharmonic hired at least 277 different substitutes or extras who played a total of 1,773 weeks during that period. Of those musicians, one was Black and he played for one week. Interestingly enough, the concerts performed during the week this Black musician played included a musical work dedicated to the memories of Dr. Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy. Despite general agreement that this Black flutist acquitted himself very well, he has not been invited by the Philharmonic to return, although white flutists have since been engaged as substitutes."

Mrs. Dixon says these examples are not isolated instances.

"There are literally dozens of Black musicians who are qualified to play right now with major symphony orchestras, only they are not wanted. How else could an integrated orchestra like the Symphony of the New World open with no less than 36 Black musicians if that were not the case? How can Mr. Bernstein say that 'because of a lack of opportunity for proper training,' Blacks are not proficient enough 'in most cases' to be hired? How could he tell the Human Rights Commission that 'the New York Philharmonic is not in the social rearmament business?'"

Mrs. Dixon urges two moves to combat discrimination against Black musicians.

*Pressure should come from the mostly white audiences who go to concerts upon the orchestra managements to hire Black musicians, because audiences "must be educated to the fact that there are qualified Black instrumentalists and that the reason they don't see them in orchestras is not that 'Blacks only like jazz.'"

*Tax benefits from all levels of government should be taken away until such time as the orchestras fully integrate their personnel.

Dishonorable Discharges Pose Menace To Nation, Black Solons Tell Nixon

A letter from 32 Black legislators representing 12 states has warned President Nixon the large number of veterans with less than honorable discharges from the Armed Forces poses "a serious threat to domestic tranquility."

The lawmakers said the nation's high unemployment rate, manifested more gravely in the Black community, was extremely aggravated by what it termed a large number of dishonorable discharges.

The letter noted the unemployment rate for Black veterans between the ages of 20 and 24 is 21 percent. "At the depths of the depression in 1933, the unemployment rate was 23.7 percent," the letter added.

According to the letter, testimony taken at an ad hoc hearing at the University of Chicago law school traced the group veterans with dishonorable discharges to "white racism, calloused and insensitive procedures and injustice throughout the United States military system.

"It has become apparent," said the lawmakers, "not only are many of the charges faced by the veterans illegitimate, but the penalties imposed after sentencing are excessive."

They said many veterans with less than honorable discharges were advised to sign for administrative discharges and told those in authority they could easily gain appeals as civilians.

"When they learn this is not true they understandably become extremely bitter and resentful," the letter said.

The letter appealed to Nixon as commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces to take immediate though unspecified action.

USDA Admits Millions Of Contaminated Chickens Have Been Sold In Stores

The United States Department of Agriculture has now admitted that millions of chickens given fish meal contaminated with a DDT-like chemical have been sold in stores in a large part of the nation.

The chemical -- polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB) -- leaked into fish meal produced at East Coast Terminal, Inc., in Wilmington, North Carolina, between the end of April 30 and mid-July.

From there, the contaminated fish meal was widely distributed to poultry growers and hog-raisers, mixed into, up to 800,000 tons of feed.

Some 35 million broiling chickens alone are sent to market each week from the 12 states -- mostly in the South -- where feed containing the tainted fish meal was sold.

CONTAMINATED

How many of these chickens consumed the contaminated feed and how much PCB was in their flesh when sold "cannot be known," says Dr. Clayton Yeutter, chief of the Agriculture Department's consumers and marketing survey.

PCB has been shown to cause low fertility in poultry and liver damage in laboratory rats. It is thought by many scientists to be a serious, long-term danger to man and animals.

In the face of this mishap, a New York Congressman has introduced a bill to ban all use of PCB because it has contaminated not only the chicken which ate the tainted feed but also human and wildlife food chains throughout the world.

Representative William F. Ryan (D-Liberal, New York) said his office has been investigating the PCB problem for two years.

'NEGLECT'

Ryan said that this latest case "graphically illustrates the gross neglect of the federal government to take preventive action against the uncontrolled use of deadly chemicals by American industry."

He said his bill replaces an earlier measure he introduced that would have permitted the Secretary of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) to exempt certain uses of PCB compounds from the ban.

"The latest case convinces us there is no safe way for the stuff to be used," said Ryan's aide, Chic Edwards.

In a speech before the House of Representatives, Ryan noted that this instance of contamination had not been found by government agents but by private sources.

"This contamination would yet be unnoticed if it were not for the fact that a commercial poultry processor became alarmed at the low rate of hatching of eggs in his broiler breeding chickens," Ryan told fellow Congressmen. "I can see no way that all the poultry and hogs subjected to this chemical can now be traced. The potential results could be disastrous."

The contaminated chickens were not the first instance of widespread PCB presence in the food chain, he said.

DESTROYED

Ryan related that 146,000 chickens were destroyed and buried last December in New York State after a Campbell's Soup Company plant in New Jersey discovered intolerably high levels of PCB in chickens purchased from New York growers.

Again, the discovery was made in private tests. The federal government does not regularly test for PCB in marketed poultry or pork, according to Ryan.

New York State officials traced that instance of contamination to chicken feed produced in a plant that used stale bakery goods which may have been wrapped in plastic bags made with PCB.

Earlier, milk from two Ohio dairy farms was found to contain PCB, derived from silage stored in silos painted with PCB-treated substances.

Government rgulation of PCB compounds has been limited. They are widely used as plasticizers (softeners) in plants, sealants, adhesives and other surface coatings, with miscellaneous applications in food, thermostats, pharmaceuticals and hydraulic fluids, according to the April, 1971, issue of "New Scientist and Science Journal."

BAN

A worldwide ban on the use of PCB and DDT -- similar to PCB -- will be proposed at a United Nations environmental conference in Stockholm next year.

PCB is a highly stable compound that breaks down slowly. It is insoluble in water but soluble in fats, a factor which causes it to become concentrated in the tissues of progressively larger animals in the food chain.

Department of Agriculture standards do not permit sale of flesh containing more than five parts per million of PCB. Some chickens fed the contaminated fish meal were found to contain up to 40 parts per million and there is no way of knowing how many similarly-infested chickens have now been consumed by the American public.

Opposed to the proposed ban is Mansanto Corporation, the sole manufacturer of PCB in this country. A spokesman for the corporation said that the use of PCB is "absolutely essential" for heavy electrical equipment and that the company had taken "vert stringent measures" to control the use of the chemical.

Since last August, he said, Monsanto has withdrawn PCB from sale for any purposes other than as the insulting fluid in electrical capacitors, as a coolant in transformers and as a fire-resistant ingredient in industrial heating and cooling systems.

These exeptions did not assuage Congressman Ryan, who told the House of Representatives that PCB is extremely toxic to life, causes birds to lay eggs with shells too thin to protect the embryos they enclose and has a bad effect on the reproductive capacity of animals.

EFFECTS

He said:

"But by far the most frightening hazard is the effect of PCB's on human begins. Polychlorinated biphenyls may be taken into the body by direct action upon the skin or as a vapor through the respiratory tract. The effect on the skin is chloracne: the early symptoms of which are pimples and dark pigmentation; later, more serious eruptions. Persons who have been continuously exposed to PCB's may suffer nausea, vomiting, loss of wright, endema and abdominal pain, increased respiration, lowered blood cell count and inhibition of the carbohydrate metabolism. More serious effects are those on the kidneys. The principle effect, however, is on the liver--possibly leading to atrophy, followed by death."

Ryan said the problem of PBC "is indicative of a much larger problem--that of the almost unrestricted influx of harmful chemicals into the marketplace. A system must be established to insure the safety of a chemical before it can be sold and then only for specific uses."

Association Gives Its 'Seal'

Lake Shasta Caverns in California has received the 1971 "seal of approval" of the National Caves Association as a recommended visitor attraction, completely safe and of interest to all members of the family, young and old.

Announcement of the endorsement was made by Thomas H. Gibson, executive vice president of Skyline Caverns, Front Royal, Virginia, president of NCA, who explained that the approval means the caves have met certain standards set for natural underground visitor attractions throughout the United States.

Lake Shasta Caverns is among 32 throughout the nation which has received the NCA approval for 1971. It is located 225 miles north of San Francisco on Interstate 5. Three scenic adventures in one, the caverns boast a 15-minute boat cruise across Lake Shasta, a 10-minute bus ride 800 feet up the Grey Rock Mountains and a 50-minute guided tour through the caverns.

The NCA is a non-profit organization which represents leading commercial caves throughout country and maintains standards for cave operation and promotes interest in visiting and touring caves and caverns.

"We congratulate all the NCA recognized caves and caverns and urge families to include one or more of these attractions in their vacations this year," Gibson declared.

He said a list of NCA approved caves, with information on each, is available free of charge to anyone writing to him or to the association's Public Relations Division, P. O. Box 3128, Chattanooga, Tennessee, 37404.

WASTEFUL

It is estimated that the average United States citizen disposes of almost six pounds of waste every day. By 1980 that figure is expected to double.

Former Trade Union Leader In Kenya Is Student In Brooklyn

A freshman just finishing his first year at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn is also a faculty member. Many of his students are also his classmates. What's more, he has been an adviser to politicians and a confidant of statesmen.

Otieno Ooro used to be a trade union leader in Africa. He was a close colleague of Oginga Odinga, former vice president of Kenya, leader of its opposition party (KPU) and until recently a political prisoner.

In Kenya's trade union movement Ooro worked with the late Minister for Planning and Economic Development--Tom Mboya--who was assassinated in July, 1969.

Ooro hopes to graduate from Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn in 1974 with a B.S. degree in political science. Meanwhile he is teaching African history and culture to PIB students--many of whom sit alongside him as classmates in other courses.

Born in Nairobi, Kenya, in 1937, Ooro spent most of his boyhood 200 miles away from the city of Kisumu. He is a genial teacher with a relaxed classroom style, and his English--which he says he learned "in the bush" in Africa--is nearly perfect.

Life in the United States agrees with him, although he had expected to find New York "a little cleaner than it is." One of his greatest pleasures here has been the rediscovery of skiing, which he first tried in Russia during the winter of 1964-65. That year he was studying at the International Trade Union College in Moscow.

Early last year a Polytechnic professor of anthropology, Dr. Eleanor B. Leacock, was traveling and studying in Africa on sabbatical leave. In Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, she and her husband met Ooro and became interested in his wish to work for a university degree in the United States.

Professor Leacock's husband is well-known Harlem labor leader and president of "Fight Back" an organization that seeks jobs in the construction industry for Blacks and Puerto Ricans.

After returning to the states the Haughtons were able to arrange a part-time faculty position for Ooro, together with several partial scholarships. One came from Church World Service, overseas relief agency of the National Council of Churches, and another from the Huber Foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. Haughton agreed to sponsor his extended stay and to help provide room and board.

Now settled in America, Ooro looks forward to three more years of work and study. He is teaching "History of Africa" and "Cultural Backgrounds of African Nations," in addition to carrying a full load of courses as a student. He said he was also using "New York City as a larger university for my own study of the greatest cultural and economic crossroads in the western world."

For nine years before leaving Kenya, Polytechnic's student professor was national organizing secretary of the Kenya Union Sugar Plantation Workers.

He says he was attracted to the labor union movement through a lifelong interest in people and their problems.

Ooro's father--whose name is Ooro Otieno--has five wives. "This is not at all unusual in my country," the son explained, adding that he himself hopes to have several wives when he returns to Kenya.

"I think that polygamy is the only civilized way to live," he said with a half-joking, half-earnest smile. When asked the age of his father's youngest wife, he replies: "I'm much older than she is."

He can't remember how many brothers and sisters he has.

"After all, who is to say whether one way of life is better than another? What is so marvelous about this world is its great diversity. That is why it's important to live and work in as many different places as possible."

Native Americans Protested

Minnesota Twins baseball star Harmon Killebrew was included among a group that saw 141 acres of prairie on Fort Snelling dedicated recently for use as a Minnesota state park by Mrs. Richard Nixon.

The president's lady got a heckling from a small crowd of American Indians who raised a few placards in the crowd of about 2,000 at the Fort's parade grounds.

The group of about 25 members of the American Indian Movement called her a "squatter." They said the land belongs to the Indians.

Flip Is Fun For Families

Flip's guest stars were Lucille Ball, the Osmonds and Ed Sullivan. If you recognize the face, you'll find in the studio audience Lucy's mother, her husband and her daughter Lucie. Also, you'll find Ed Sullivan's wife and the entire Osmond family.

There was so much of a family atmosphere that during the taping session, Flip adopted one of Sullivan's habits -- pointing out people in the audience. While pointing, he found another television family man, Fred McMurray, enjoying the show with his real-life wife.

Wants Law

State Senator Nicholas C. Petris (D, Oakland) has introduced a bill calling for the sale of any motor vehicle with a speed capacity of more than 75 miles per hour to be prohibited after January 1, 1973.

Pointing out that speed and drinking are the leading causes of fatal accidents, Petris said that "highway carnage must be stopped."

He also introduced a bill calling for color-coding speed zones with colors corresponding to buttons on the dashboard of all vehicles.

Say Seal Slaughter Needed

At least 80,000 baby seals will be killed in an annual slaughter now under way off South Africa and Southwest Africa.

As in Canada and Norway, where similar hunts are conducted, animal lovers deplore the operation. But fishermen say their livelihood is threatened unless the seal herds are controlled.

South African government experts assert "culling" is necessary to keep down the herds, estimated to total one million.

This year's South African operation is expected to net about $1.4 million in foreign exchange.
